Local Health Services in Tinsley Have Your Say

The South East Sheffield Primary Care Trust is planning changes to local health services in Tinsley. Over a number of years local residents and Tinsley Forum have raised concerns about the quality of their local health services. The PCT have commissioned a research team from Sheffield Hallam University to undertake an independent study to understand these concerns better and to see how they might be addressed in future service provision. You might be one of the 450 patients from Highgate and Ingfield Avenue surgeries who have been chosen at random to complete a questionnaire. Your views matter, please make every effort to complete the questionnaire when the interviewer calls on you in the next couple of weeks. If you have not received a letter about the questionnaire then you could have your say at the drop in listening session on Saturday 20th September from 10 am to 1.00 pm at Tinsley Methodist Church. Or you could take part in one of five small discussion groups that are taking place over the next couple of weeks (to book a place see back page). Remember its your health

Tinsley Rec. Regeneration

The extensive Community Consultation that took place in April/May of this year, and highlighted in the April edition of the Tribune is now starting to pay dividends. The masterplan and associated drawings for the regeneration of the rec. have now been completed by the Architects Landscape Projects and preliminary phasing and costing of how the work can be undertaken have been produced. The drawings for the new Family Centre have now been revised and completed by SELF Architects and costing for the new complex completed. Both sets of plans now fully reflect the majority views of Tinsley residents, obtained in April/May. Residents have been calling into the SureStart offices to enquire when work will be commencing in the recreation ground, we are still a bit away from that position at the moment. Planning approval will now need to be sought for the schemes and that could take upwards of 6 months, then design and contractor appointment still needs to be made so it will be well into next year before work can commence. Now that approximate costs have been determined the whole aspect of additional funding required needs to be determined and this in itself will take a fair amount of time. So things are moving on, but there is still a lot of work to be undertaken.

Tinsley HomeZone Project

The Tinsley Home Zones project has been running for about three months now. Just to remind you, Home zones are residential streets where the road space is shared between drivers of motor vehicles and other road users, with the wider needs of residents being accommodated. Introducing a home zone typically aims to:

- Create more open space, provide more space for planting and opening up the street as a place for meeting neighbours
- Reduce the fear of crime and create safer places for children's play close to home
- Slow traffic down, reduce through traffic and improve road safety

The project is focusing on the streets at the North end of Tinsley, in particular Town Street, where some residents have been pressing to get a home zone. The consultants Keith McKoy and Andy Wild have held a couple of meetings to get the views of residents of Town Street about the idea of converting their street into a Home Zone. All of the Town Street residents spoken to so far - and we have spoken to people of all ages - are 100% in favour of the home zone idea. They want to see more places for children to play, more car parking spaces provided, some seats and some planting as well as a general tidying of the street.

Keith and Andy will soon be working with Town Street residents to get some plans and sketches drawn up to illustrate the ideas residents have put forward. The project aims to be in a position to bid for funding, if the government runs another round of its Home Zone Challenge Fund.

The consultants will also be looking to link with the project to regenerate the recreation ground and to see if there is any scope for a home zone treatment near the entrance on Norborough Road.

Meanwhile, Andy has been looking into some home zones in other cities. The Northmoor home zone project in Manchester has been a great success according to one of the main housing associations in the area. People have been involved in the redesign of their streets and have, for the first time, had the chance to plant-up a small area outside their front doors. The greater sense of pride felt by local residents has improved the sense of community, reduced the number of empty properties and increased property values. Home Zones can be an effective tool for helping areas where the housing market is weak. What do you think? Let us know what you think of the home zone idea:

Study on local primary health care services in Tinsley

INFORMATION SHEET

Introduction

A study into Tinsley residents' views and experiences of local health care services is being carried out. This sheet explains why the study is being done and what it will involve. If anything is unclear, or you would like more information, please contact Sue Greig or Baljit Sanghera at the PCT on 0114 226 4050.

Why is the study taking place?

The South East Sheffield Primary Care Trust (PCT) is planning changes to local health services in Tinsley. Over a number of years local residents and Tinsley Forum have raised concerns about the quality of their local health services. In order to understand these concerns better and see how they might be addressed in future service provision the PCT have commissioned Sheffield Hallam University to undertake independent research. As a Tinsley resident you have the opportunity to take part in the study.

There are three parts to the study:

- Questionnaire survey

A total of 450 patients from Highgate and Ingfield Avenue surgeries have been chosen at random to complete a questionnaire. In early September all those randomly picked will receive a letter informing them about the study. During September community researchers will visit them at home and help them complete the questionnaire. The questionnaire will be available in English and Urdu and the community researchers will be able to offer interpreting help if needed.

- Focus group research

Five focus group discussions will take place in September for the different sections of the Tinsley community - Pakistani women (aged 18-30 & 30+); Pakistani men; white men; and white women. There will be 8-10 people in each group and each discussion will last approximately 2 hours. The dates and times of the focus group discussions will be publicised locally and places will be allocated on a first come first served basis. (see back page)

- PCT 'Drop-In' sessions

At the end of July the PCT held two open drop-in sessions to listen to local residents' views on health services in Tinsley. One further drop in session will be organised on a Saturday to be arranged in September; the date will be publicised locally. (see back page)

How will the findings from this study be reported and used?

At the end of October the Sheffield Hallam University research team will draw together evidence from the questionnaire survey and focus group research and report their findings. A report on the drop-ins will be produced by the Sheffield NHS Informatics Service in October. Both reports will be presented to Tinsley residents, through Tinsley Forum and Darnall Area Panel, and to the local primary health care teams. Using all this evidence the PCT will then discuss and agree plans for future health services in Tinsley with Tinsley Forum, the Darnall Area Panel and the local primary health care workers.

Do I have to take part?

No, taking part is voluntary. If you do not want to take part you do not have to give a reason. If you take part but later change your mind you can withdraw at any time from the study.
